MASTER DISTILLER
CRAIG BEAM

"Memories of working with my grandfather and dad came over me when I first smelled this bourbon. On the nose, yeast reminds me of banana pudding. I love that smell! The taste has a perfect touch of spice, with a whisper of cinnamon. The rich butterscotch finish is complemented by hints of maple syrup."

KENTUCKY STRAIGHT BOURBON WHISKEY

Legacy | Tradition | Authentic Kentucky

Seven Generations... and Then Some.

Master Distiller Craig Beam is a seventh-generation bourbon distiller. He's been making bourbon since he was legally old enough to drink it and watched his father and grandfather even before that.

Craig and Assistant Master Distiller Terry Ballard are steeped in making excellent bourbons that carry other people's brands. Today, they apply everything they've learned over the past 40 years to making bourbon for Jackson Purchase Distillery.

Authenticity

Craig and Terry are making bourbon today using tried-and-true methods passed down from generations—Sourcing local grains, using 100% copper stills, and meticulously watching over the barrels they put up. Their decades of distilling different mashbills have culminated in Jackson Purchase Bourbon, a brand distilled and aged for this unique achievement.

Reflection of Place

We source hundreds of thousands of bushels of grain yearly from Kentucky's grain belt. We sit atop a unique limestone aquifer, critical for producing smooth, rich bourbon. And the seasons in this bourbon-making paradise provide us with perfect variations in climate, essential to the aging process.

Grains & Barrel

After making bourbon with many different mashbills and barrel chars, Master Distiller Craig Beam settled on a mash of 70% corn, 20% rye, and 10% malted barley, married with a #4 char, new white oak barrel.

Once in the barrels that will be its home for at least four years, the bourbon flows in and out of the charred oak with the seasons, creating a nuanced range of aromas and flavors. The western Kentucky microclimate provides up to eight weeks of warmer weather, further enhancing the flavor.

Like all expressions of Jackson Purchase Bourbon, Bottled in Bond is distilled at the Jackson Purchase Distillery in Hickman, Kentucky.
