KENTUCKY STRAIGHT BOURBON WHISKEY

Bottled in Bond

Bottled in Bond is one of bourbon's most respected designations—and one of its most difficult to achieve consistently. Established by the Bottled-in-Bond Act of 1897, the designation requires that the whiskey be produced at a single distillery during a single distillation season, aged at least four years in a federally bonded warehouse, and bottled at exactly 100 proof. This bourbon features layers of rich caramel, dark fruit, oak, and spice—a true reflection of our craftsmanship and western Kentucky roots.

What makes Bottled in Bond special is what it doesn't allow. Distillers cannot blend whiskey from different seasons, distilleries, or age statements to create consistency. Therefore, Bottled in Bond has long been considered a measure of a distiller's skill, patience, and consistency.

MASTER DISTILLER
CRAIG BEAM

"A simple hint of spices on the nose with just the right amount of oak. It's creamy on the back of the palate, with a smooth, buttery finish. This bourbon is easy to drink – almost too easy if there is such a thing."

Legacy | Tradition | Authentic Kentucky

Seven Generations... and Then Some.

Master Distiller Craig Beam is a seventh-generation bourbon distiller. He's been making bourbon since he was legally old enough to drink it and watched his father and grandfather even before that.

Craig and Assistant Master Distiller Terry Ballard are steeped in making excellent bourbons that carry other people's brands. Today, they apply everything they've learned over the past 40 years to making bourbon for Jackson Purchase Distillery.

Authenticity

Craig and Terry are making bourbon today using tried-and-true methods passed down from generations—Sourcing local grains, using 100% copper stills, and meticulously watching over the barrels they put up. Their decades of distilling different mashbills have culminated in Jackson Purchase Bourbon, a brand distilled and aged for this unique achievement.

Reflection of Place

We source hundreds of thousands of bushels of grain yearly from Kentucky's grain belt. We sit atop a unique limestone aquifer, critical for producing smooth, rich bourbon. And the seasons in this bourbon-making paradise provide us with perfect variations in climate, essential to the aging process.

Grains & Barrel

After making bourbon with many different mashbills and barrel chars, Master Distiller Craig Beam settled on a mash of 70% corn, 20% rye, and 10% malted barley, married with a #4 char, new white oak barrel.

Once in the barrels that will be its home for at least four years, the bourbon flows in and out of the charred oak with the seasons, creating a nuanced range of aromas and flavors. The western Kentucky microclimate provides up to eight weeks of warmer weather, further enhancing the flavor.

Like all expressions of Jackson Purchase Bourbon, Bottled in Bond is distilled at the Jackson Purchase Distillery in Hickman, Kentucky.
